CITY

SHANGHAI

Waterhouse at South Bund

Shanghai hotels tend toward the vertical and voluptuous, but one look at this austere lobby—exposed brick walls; steel beams; stone floors—and it's clear the Waterhouse has broken the mold. The 19-room hotel is housed in a low-slung 1930's warehouse on the southern part of the city's iconic Bund promenade. Guest rooms blend rough concrete ceilings with blond-wood floors, while Huangpu River-facing windows flood them with natural light. No. 1-3 Bldg., Maojiayuan Rd., 800/337-4685; waterhouseshanghai.com; doubles from $206.

Ian Fleming built a villa on a hidden cove to write his James Bond novels and entertain visitors including Noël Coward and Errol Flynn. Now owner Chris Blackwell has transformed GoldenEye into a small but stylish resort. With only 11 cottages and six suites along a white-sand beach and secluded lagoon, the vibe is as exclusive as it was in Fleming's day and the guest list just as impressive (was that Beyoncé and Jay-Z hanging out at the waterfront Bizot bar?). Oracabessa, St.

JAMAICA

GoldenEye Hotel & Resort

This property on the northern coast of Jamaica has quite a pedigree: in the 1940's,

BARRA DE SÃO MIGUEL, BRAZIL

Kenoa

It was a risky proposition for engineer Pedro Marques to quit his career to open a 23-room eco-retreat on a sleepy beach along Brazil's Alagoas coast, north of Bahia. But the gamble has paid off in spades. The hotel wows with eucalyptus columns and natural wood and brick interiors, all of which reinforce the indoor-outdoor aesthetic that sets the retreat apart. Environmental responsibility is emphasized: staffers are instructed in conservation techniques to avoid disturbing the nearby preserve. Rua Escritor Jorge de Lima, 58 Barramar; 800/337-4685; kenoaresort.com; doubles from $630.

MESSINIA, GREECE

The Romanos, a Luxury Collection Resort

A onetime stomping ground for ancient Greek royalty, the white-sand beaches of Messinia, in the Peloponnese region, are about to have their second heyday. The 321-room Romanos is the first of an eco-conscious, four-resort development named Costa Navarino. The whitewashed, 321-acre property, virtually invisible from the beach alongside it, has a golf course that's irrigated with rainwater, and 80 percent of the property will operate on solar power by 2012. Not that the Romanos isn't about indulging: each of the 32 light-filled suites has a private pool, and the breakfast spread includes five steaming bowl of pho at breakfast to a dip in your private oceanfront plunge pool—it's the perfect place to spend the afternoon while listening for calls from macaques in the jungle. Dat Doc Beach; 84-

KOH SAMUI, THAILAND

W Retreat Koh Samui

Bringing a long-lacking dose of mod design and youthful exuberance to this ever-popular Thai resort island, W Hotels' first "Retreat" property in Southeast Asia hews to the brand's urbane aesthetic. Fans of the cheeky W formula will find all the requisite diversions, from morning Thai boxing classes to midnight mojitos at WooBar. Seeking serenity? The resort occupies a coveted peninsula on Samui's quiet northern coast. While the lure of the beach may be hard to resist, guest rooms offer plenty of watery temptations as well: all of the 75 glass-walled villas have private pools, and the best offer shimmering Gulf of types of local honey. Navarino Dunes, Costa Navarino; 800/325-3589; romanoscostonavarino.com; doubles from $457.

BEACH

CON DAO, VIETNAM

Six Senses Con Dao

Sybarites in search of Southeast Asia's next great escape are heading to Con Dao Island, where Six Senses has upped the ante on luxury. Just a 45-minute flight south of Ho Chi Minh City, 50 minimalist villas on a pristine southern coast are constructed in blond wood. Canopy beds are draped in gauzy fabric, while bathrooms have enormous sea-facing windows. Time moves slowly here, from the first
